GORDON A PRISONER.

FATAL DISASTER TO THE BRITISH ARMY IN THE DESERT.

GLADSTONE MAY RESIGN.

Col. Wilson Compelled to Retreat—His Steamers Wrecked—Belegued on a Ride Island—Fears for Stewart—
London Wild With Excitement.

MAJ.-GEN. C. G. GORDON.

London, Feb. 6.—General Wolseley telegraphs that Khartoum has fallen. He says that when Colonel Wilson, who went from Metemeh to Khartoum, reached the latter place he found it in the hands of the rebels. He returned to Metemeh under a heavy fire from both banks of the river.

General Gordon, by his official authority, confirms the report of the fall of Khartoum. It says the rebels secured the city by trenchery, and that General Gordon is a prisoner.

The morning papers issue extra editions in which they continue to affirm the fall of Khartoum, but the war office declined for some time to state the character of the dispatches received from General Wolseley.

The city is overwhelmed with sorrow on account of the news from Khartoum. The good news of a week ago has been more than eclipsed by the tidings, and to-day is felt as one of the darkest in England's recent history.

The war office was at last compelled to issue the following:

Telegrams from General Wolseley announce that the fall of Khartoum took place on January 30. He says Colonel Wilson arrived at Khartoum January 28. He was greatly surprised to find that the enemy were in possession of that place.

He immediately started on his return down the river, and proceeded under heavy fire from the rebels.

When some miles below the Shubakha canal Colonel Wilson's steamers were wrecked, and he and his whole party managed to get ashore in safety, where they are now.

A steamer has brought them back to the British camp, near Metemeh. General Wolseley is still in command, and does not know whether he is dead or alive.

There is no longer any doubt that the rebels hold possession of Khartoum. Some hopes are entertained that General Gordon may still be alive, but the fate of the town is still unknown.

Menby has the excitement in London and everywhere throughout the British Isles where the news is known, is rising to fever heat. Clubs and public resorts of every description are crowded with crowds of men, who are eager to catch the last cable of intelligence from the distant Egyptian desert.

Fleet street and the Strand is a thoroughfare with throngs of curious and excited citizens. Menby people take a gloomy view of the position of the British troops in the Sudan?

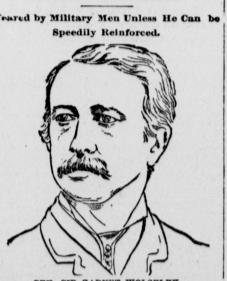

The jubilant gladness which characterized England and Egypt, over the successful arrival in the neighborhood of Metemeh was received, has given way to universal depression, and expressions of dismay and foreboding come from almost everybody.

It is too early to form any accurate estimate of the political situation.

The war office is besieged with an army of telegrams tendering their services for active duty in the Sudan. Numerous telegrams are being received from officers throughout the country asking for assignments to resume the expedition should the government decide to take such action.

DISASTER TO WOLSELEY

Feared by Military Men Unless He Can Speedily Reinforced.

GEN. GARNET WOLSELEY.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The capture of Khartom has created grave fears, for the Mahdi's forces have taken full possession of the city. A number of military officers of repute even express the opinion that unless reinforcements are hurried forward to Korti, the fall of Khartoum may lead to disaster to the forces under Lord Wolseley and General Gordon.

A cabinet council has been summoned to meet at once. Mr. Gladstone is fearfully disturbed by the news, and some people believe he will do all in his power to prevent a dispatch from General Wolseley stating that General Stewart is doing well back to Korti.

The news reports that the Mahdi had 60,000 men in the vicinity of Khartoum, and he introduced a number of his emissaries into the city. These emissaries mingled freely with the native troops under General Gordon and General Stewart, and many of them were of high rank.

High feelings induced them to mutiny.
Seven thousand of the garrison deserted to the rebels, leaving Gordon only 2,500 reliable soldiers. With this small force he attempted to hold the fort against the Mahdi's great army, but after a fierce fighting, in which a large number of rebels were killed, he was compelled to surrender.

When Sir Charles Wilson reached Khartoum, he found the Mahdi's forces in control of both the town and the country. He tried to land and ascertain the fate of Gordon, but this step he found impossible. The enemies were turned upon him in full force. The garrison was killed to the last man, and the fort was captured and reduced to ruins.

Military authorities are of the opinion that General Gordon's entire force of 10,000 men has been captured. The news spread throughout the country has created grave apprehension in regard to the Egyptian problem among the members of the national committee, and Earl Granville, started for London as soon as the news reached them.

Stewart's little band will ever recover the designs of the Mahdi, and the loss of the Damades by the British fleet during the Turco-Bengal war has there been such excitement in the city. Every street corner groups excited people to discuss the news, speculating as to the fate of the British forces in the present emergency. Many predict that it will result in the fall of Gladstone's government.

New York, Feb. 6.—A fire broke out shortly after mid-night in the five-story factory building from 108 to 114 Wooster street, occupied by the Goodyear Rubber Company, Messrs. Goodyear, Muller,
M. Ausbaum, straw goods; J. Scott & Brown, fringes and Scott & Brown, fancy goods.

The fire was not got under control until nearly half the block had been destroyed.
The stock was all valuable, and the value of the building set by the fire was estimated nearly $1,000,000. The fire started in the liquor store of the Goodyear Rubber Company, and spread quickly among the adjacent buildings.
The fire was put out by a force of 120 firemen from the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th battalions, and a company of the police.

PRESIDENT-ELECT CLEVELAND INVITES LEADING DEMOCRATS

Who Have any of the Commodity on Hand

What He Says of His Visit.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—President-elect Cleveland arrived in this city Wednesday night at 11 o'clock. He had planned to leave Albany as soon as the train got in, but he remained in Albany all night, and did not leave until Thursday morning. There had been quite a crowd waiting him when the train came in.

When the president-elect alighted, Secretary Lamont walked beside him and the car porter trotted behind with a valise in each hand. They had no luggage.

"There is nothing to be hidden in regard to my visit here," said Cleveland.

"I came to inform you of my plans, and to ask you to give me your views on the

THE DAILY BULLETIN.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1885.

HON. W. M. MORRISON has received the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in Illinois.

ALTHOUGH there are upwards of half a million Union soldiers still living who are not members of the Grand Army of the Republic that organization is yearly receiving large accessions to its membership, which now totals up 275,000. The number of posts is now reported at 6,000. The further away from the war we get the more rapidly the powerful organization seems to grow.

THERE is little probability of any legislation in this Congress for honestly redeeming the trade dollars. But the owners of these dollars who can afford to keep them should not despair of the ultimate justice of the Government. When a coin that is intrinsically worthless is made legal tender for a dollar there is not an honest reason why the trade dollar should be repudiated.

It really begins to look as if the business interests of the country were reawakening and taking a fresh start toward prosperity. The news from almost all quarters is of the reopening of mills, and the employment of labor which for a long time has been idle. There cannot however, be a lasting and permanent improvement until some broad and comprehensive measures are taken to extend the demand for our wares to a point which comes more near to meeting the supply. The fact is, that the productive capacity of most of the manufacturing industries of the country is fully double the demand of the country itself. Either the production must be starved down to half-rates, or market must be found beyond our own boundaries. It will take some time to convince the theorists of this fact, but it must be recognized, before any stability to our prosperity can be hoped for.

The Folly of Petty Thieving. [New York Tribune]

Judge Cowing has sentenced a young man convicted of stealing a pen knife worth 25 cents to a term of twelve years imprisonment. This sentence can scarcely fail to afford amusement to some American gentlemen domiciled in her Majesty's dominions above the lakes.

Caroline Pays Quite a Tribute. [Atlanta Constitution]

Mr. Garrison, of Mr. Cleveland has a good deal of common sense. This is quite a tribute. There is so much common nonsense in the country that a man who has common sense ought to be classed as a genius. Washington had common sense and so did Abraham Lincoln. Common sense is the one saving quality in the affairs of this world.

Wants a Legislator. [Louisville Post]

Governor Knott is convened in the State for legislative session. His efforts are being directed toward inducing the best men the districts afford to enter the field for the State halls. Yesterday he had an interview with Hon. Albert Stoll, the present member from the First district, to impress upon him as a personal favor to make the race for the Legislature in his district. Mr. Stoll has not yet given a decided answer. Mr. Jacob Bickel, the councilman, is announced as a candidate. The reason assigned by the Governor for his interest in the formation of the next Legislature is that the present financial condition of the State does not suit him and in order to secure an improvement it will be necessary to secure a body of men who have some knowledge and interest in the financial affairs. The Governor has already succeeded in bringing out Mr. Phil Thompson, Sr., of Mercer, and Hon. Milt Durham, of Boyle.

Personal and Political.

The late Ludwig Bohnstedt, of Gotha was one of the foremost architects of Germany. At twenty-nine he was made Court Architect at St. Petersburg, and he built the Monastery of the Resurred. He planned other splendid structures there. He took the first prize in the competition for designs for the Reichstag building in Berlin in 1872.

Dr. Dio Lewis now comes out with an edict that tomatoes are a medicine, and not a food, and should be eaten only when prescribed by a physician. Any fool can see that tomatoes are a subject good old bournon to the same prescriptive and prescriptive process.

Man million Worth announces his intention of leaving his business to his two sons, as he is satisfied to retire on the achievement achieved by his undoubtedly success on the theatrical and operatic stage.

Mrs. Lafayette S. Foster, of Connecticut, has presented to the United States Senate a fine marble portrait-bust of her late husband, who was a member of that body from 1867 to 1870.

General McClellan is still holding up the advancement of the invitation to lead Marshal on Inauguration Day. He is reported to be spending much time studying a map of Washington, laying out lines of retreat, etc.

Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox is desperately fond of ice-skating, even more than of writing poems.

Old John Ruskin's latest edict is against sewing machines, and he decries that all English girls should make their own gowns with the needle; this is only a fresh instance of Ruskin's unbounded contempt for what he says is so.

Miss Mary Wilcox, late superintendent of the Soldiers' and Orphans' Home at Xenia, O., has been tendered a like position in the Wilson's Children's Home, at West Union.

When the case of Charles Harper, charged with abducting two young girls from Lawrence county, Ky., was called for trial at Lexington, Wednesday, Harter presided over the trial from the governor, and was dismissed.

William S. Kirker, former teller of the Second National bank of Ironton, O., was sentenced, in the United States court, Cincinnati, to five years in the Lawrence county (Ohio) jail for making false entries.

SAVED FROM CANNIBALISM.

Horrible Experience of a Family Imprisoned on an Island.

PORT DEPOSIT, Md., Feb. 6.—William J. Roberts, with his wife and five children, live on a small island in the Susquehanna river, near Port Deposit, the city of which they have fled to in order to ignore the turbulent dynamics of outrages in London. Their silence is not only bad, but is apt to be falsely construed. The article concludes with the suggestion, which is excellent, in a moral and spiritual point of view, that perhaps it would be wise if the Roman Catholic bishops openly denounce these secret attacks. This would also create a good impression in England, which is much to be desired. Michael Davitt is at present sojourning in Rome.

The Papal Organ on Parnell's Silence.

TORE, Feb. 6.—The Moniteur Du ROME, which is generally recognized as the official newspaper organ of the pope, regrets that Mr. Parnell, as well as other prominent Irish leaders, have failed with the house of commons to have it fit to openly ignore the turbulent dynamics of outrages in London. Their silence is not only bad, but is apt to be falsely construed. The article concludes with the suggestion, which is excellent, in a moral and spiritual point of view, that perhaps it would be wise if the Roman Catholic bishops openly denounce these secret attacks. MYSTERY OF THE WOODS

UNEXPECTED SOLUTION OF A TWENTY-YEAR-OLD ROMANCE.

A Man Who Believed Himself a Murderer and Whom Friends Believed the Victim
A Woman Was at the Bottom of It—A Strange Story Explained.

New York, Feb. 6.—Captain C. T. Cutler, of Clarion Mills, Pa., purchased a ticket for number 1 at a railroad ticket office in this city, on Wednesday.

"This ticket," said he, "is for a man who for twenty years has believed himself to be a murderer fleeing from justice, and whose friends, on the other hand, have for twenty years thought he was the victim of the man whom he himself believed he had murdered. His name is Alexander Baer, and it was only a few weeks ago that he found out he was not a murderer."

Baer worked for me in 1863. He was paying attention to a girl named Hattie, and I think they were engaged when married. Baer was a guest at the lumberman's boarding house. In the fall of that year a good-looking young Scotchman named Gray Cameron came to my mills to work. He belonged to a lumber company in New York. His son can't speak German, and the Hattie-way girl, and the result was that the two became bitter enemies. They worked in the same logging camp.

"One day in the winter of 1864, Cameron came to me with a bloody face. He said that Baer had got into a quarrel over the Hattie-way girl, and had come to blows. Baer had knocked him senseless with a club, and when he came to he was unable to find his way home. He had not a cent in his pocket, and was now again at short of any of the camps. As Baer had nearly $200 due from him our company, and had left a $10 in his trunk at the boarding house, his disappearance had an air of mystery about it that pained us all. We were told that Cameron had been in the fight between him and Cameron the Scotchman had killed his rival, and, fearful of the consequences, had sacrificed his body. Cameron's wife, however, then came to us and offered to pay for the full investigation of the affair, and all the expenses of a search for the whereabouts of the missing lumberman. He employed an officer to follow every possible clue he could find that might lead to the solution of the mystery, but nothing could be learned.

When the ice broke up in the spring some boys who were fishing for suckers in the north branch of the river were attracted by a peculiar looking object that lay along some weeds, and when they lifted it out with their poles, on dragging it out they saw that it was the half-drowned body of a man. They hurried to the lumber camp and told the men at work there what they had found. They took the body to the doctor, and removal of the features was impossible. There were remnants of a plaid coat, or jacket, on the body. Alexander Baer was the only one in the region who had worn such a coat. The plaid was made by a local关心 a greenish black. An inquest was held, at which the remains were declared to be those of the missing lumberman. The finding of the dead body aroused new suspicions that he had been killed by someone. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that the man had come to his death in a manner unknown.

Baer's friends demanded the arrest of Cameron. A warrant was issued, and Cameron was taken away. But he was not guilty of his friend's murder. He was pursued and captured, but while he was being taken to the county seat he escaped from the officer and was never recaptured. It was believed he was living in the army, and a soldier of the Sixty-seventh Pennsylvania regiment sent home the news in 1865 that he had seen the dead body of Cameron among those who had died in Libby prison. At all events, nothing else was ever heard of the alleged murderer, and the incidents connected with his case were gradually forgotten.

"A few days ago a stranger appeared at the Clarion mills and asked for me. To my great surprise he told me he was the missing Alexander Baer, and that he had been in his old home town a double. He told a singular story. He said that Cameron's version of their fight was true. When he had knocked Cameron senseless with the club, he became frightened and tried to revive him, but when he did so he saw that Cameron was dead. He fled from the place to escape the consequences of the crime. He met on the edge of the camp a man named Perry, who told him that he was going to cross the ice at the end of his string, and through a hole into an air hole and was drowned, and his body, with the remnants of Baer's plaid coat on, was the one the boy found the next spring.

The man went to Pittsburgh, where he enlisted in the army under an assumed name. After the war he went to California and other western states, never having heard a word from the mills or remembered to be until the time of last summer. The man, whose name is Denver, a man named Philip Craig, who was working for me at the time of the supposed murder. They recognized one another, and Craig told Baer the story of the affair, giving him the address of the lumber camp, and he worked his way gradually east, to revisit the old scene and set things right. The Hattie-way girl, over whom the two men quarreled, was married in 1867, and died last year. Her son, a strapping chap, is serving yeoman in the navy, and is the boy who found Baer. Baer worked a day in the old place, but concluded he preferred to go back west, and he's going on this ticket."

Cruelties to Convicts.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 6.—Some time since a convicts' camp in Georgia was broken up by order of the governor, the law sees having placed an unsatisfactory superintendent in charge, and the convicts were brought to the Chattahoochee camp, near here. The new arrivals have been very well received by the inmates. On Tuesday it was discovered that about seventeen of the convicts had organized for an outbreak. They intended to overpower or kill the guards, and escape. Prompt measures were taken by the principal keeper to break up the conspiracy, and the rebels were easily overcome. The ringleaders were severely flogged by the whipping bosses, and the doce will be repeated daily until they will think no more of mutiny."
